
THE ANTICRAFT

www.theanticraft.com

You'll know you're not in Grannyland anymore when you go to The Anticraft. With the motto "You know you're gonna die anyway, you might as well knit," this goth-flavored site has gorgeous patterns for hip knitters with a foot in the dark side, like a heart-shape box (hopefully named for the Nirvana song) or fingerless snowflake-and-skull arm warmers (called "A Snowball's Chance in Hell," hee hee). With devilishly clever wordage (see the "Antifesto"), this site seeks to celebrate the nourishing qualities of knitting and to inject the craft with a hearty dose of humor. And they're lookin' for submissions! What are you waiting for?

